Letter...

In a language and time where the words, Super Colossal, merely define the size of an olive, what words could describe the beauty and grandeur of the land and firmament that has not been touched except by God?

From the headwaters of the Black Rock Creek south to the south fork of the Big Sur and from Mt. Pico Blanco, east to the South Ventana Cone lie thousands of acres of primitive land that superfluous words cannot define. In my opinion this, the Ventana wild area should be kept free from all the encroachments of (civilized?) man.

When I was fifteen years old it was my good fortune to travel for months collecting biological speciments with a professor from Stanford University. We camped in the Ventana wild area and other parts of the National Forest as far south as San Luis Obispo County. We lived out of what we carried on our backs as much as two weeks without coming to town for supplies. I love the out-doors and don't believe I could exist if I didn't venture there at least four times a month.

Several firms are presently marketing vehicles for travel on trails. They go by inglorious names such as Trailstre, Pack Mule, Tote-Gote, Campster, Blazer, etc. The government is the big customer for most of these, Dept. of Agriculture, Forestry Dept. etc. being used to supplant horses as an economy, humane, and conservative measure. The economy reason is apparent, horses have to eat year round. The humane reason, (the government does have a soul), well, you're just not doing a horse a favor expecting him to pack into dry places without always proper facilities. August deer hunting especially. As for conservation, I've seen places where horses have made shambles of trails, particularly on hillsides where the trails have to be scooped out and are subject to erosion. It is simple arithmetic to reason that a 1,000 pound-pack-laden horse contributes more abrasive energy than a 80-pound rubber tired vehicle with more square inches of ground contact. However, the people who ride these vehicles have to use discretion in the places they wish to go. The wild area is out. They shouldn't have horses in the wild area, either, for all the reasons mentioned in last week's editorial.

An idea was set forth by a very conservative-minded individual whereby all these vehicles would have to be inspected and licensed for a fee which could bolster the funds of the Forestry Department and also give them control over the use of them in the forest; i.e. registry, destination, etc., and make sure they were equipped with the now available and approved fire-proof and noise-proof gadgets. I think it would be a good idea to have a test along with that license to make sure the fellow knew how to handle his vehicle and also maintain a code of conservative courtesy. I understand that there is presently a group of volunteer forest fire fighters who are very effective in helping the forestry service in the Sitgreaves National forest in Arizona.

In all, I think these vehicles

Bach Festival Soloists, Schedule Are Announced

Names of soloists, schedule and program for the twenty-fourth annual Bach Festival were released this week, together with the announcement that the Festival, incorporated in 1958 as a non-profit corporation, has been granted both state and federal tax exemption.

New format for the 1961 Festival, extended this year from a week to ten days, July 14 to 23, is reflected in the more than 4000 brochures mailed on Friday to former season subscribers in all 50 states and several foreign countries.

Extension of Festival Week will permit repetition of the opening Friday and Sunday concerts the following weekend. Friday night concerts, July 14 and 21, will be an all-Bach program of three cantatas, the Fifth Brandenburg Concerto, and a Concerto for Two Harpsichords, with Alice Ehlers and Ralph Linsley as instrumental soloists. Complete performances of Bach's B Minor Mass will be presented at Sunset Auditorium on successive Sunday afternoons, July 16 and 23.

Saturday night concerts, July 15 and 22, will both include the Symphony No. 60 Il Distratto, of Haydn, but will feature different

"The Next 15 Or 20 Years Are The Critical Ones"

By C. Edward Graves

Last Friday and Saturday I attended the meetings of the Wilderness Conference at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco. This is a biennial conference of people interested in wilderness preservation, sponsored by the Sierra Club. Every other year it is held in Portland or Seattle.

The first of these conferences was held in Berkeley in 1949, attended by about 100 people. It has grown steadily in importance and this year some 700 or 800 people from various parts of the West attended the meetings, with a banquet Friday evening and a formal luncheon Saturday noon.

The general theme was "The American Heritage of Wilderness". The featured speakers were Justice of the Supreme Court William O. Douglas, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Representative John P. Saylor of Pensylvania. State Senator Fred Farr took part in the Saturday morning panel on "The Face of the Land". He described the Owings plan for preserving the scenery of the coast highway, illustrating it with a large chart showing the various types of land use. He also explained several bills before the Legislature of interest to conservationists.

Secretary Udall gave a very enthusiastically received talk on the conservation policies of the present Administration. He had flown over the Point Reyes area, cur-

Lofton Proposes Carmel City Hall Memorial Art Museum

Richard Lofton outlined to other art commissioners, yesterday afternoon, ideas for establishing a permanent memorial art museum in the Carmel City Hall council chambers.

He suggested that the permanent exhibit be limited to work of deceased artists who had been closely associated with the history of Carmel; and that a concise biography of each artist be displayed beside each work exhibited.

Mr. Lofton stated that the memorial museum would make the council chambers a more attractive place in which to conduct the affairs of the city; the city-owned collection would not compete with but stimulate interest in private galleries; the present city-owned art collection would be expanded once objectives of the memorial museum were known; standards for work accepted for the museum should be of the highest possible level.

He emphasized that establishment of the art museum would take much preparation, including

Dr. Stephen Whitaker Accepts Northwestern Faculty Appointment

Dr. Stephen Whitaker, son of Councilman Francis Whitaker and Mrs. Whitaker, has been appointed assistant professor of chemical engineering at Northwestern University in Evanstan, Illinois, effective in September. For the past three years he has been on the research staff of the Dupont Company in Wilmington, Delaware.

Dr. Whitaker was born in Carmel and received his early education in the Carmel schools. He was an honor student and outstanding athlete at Carmel High School.

He continued his education at the University of California where he obtained his B. A. degree and was top student in his mechanical engineering class. Granted a National Science Foundation fellowship for three years of graduate work, he obtained his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees at the University of Delaware.

SCHOOL CANDIDATE FORUM TONIGHT

Candidates for the Carmel Unified School District board of trustees, the Monterey Peninsula Junior College Board, and the Monterey County Board of Education will speak tonight, 8:00 o'clock, in Sunset School cafeteria, at a forum arranged by the local branch of the American Association of University Women.

Mark Raggett is the only Carmel candidate among nine persons running for two vacancies on the college board.

The five Carmel school board candidates are Clayton Neill Jr., Dr. Robert E. Newton, Laurence P. Horan, Mrs. John E. Taylor and Arthur Templeman. Two vacancies exist.

Mrs. Doris Manning of Monterey is the county school board candidate.

Vote For Raggett, Neill, Newton In Tuesday Election

Tuesday is election day for school district board members. We urge you to vote because this election is important.

We recommend for Monterey Peninsula Junior College District Board: Mark Raggett, Carmel.

For Carmel Unified School District Board, two vacancies to be filled: Clayton Neill and Dr. Robert E. Newton.

When Carmel voted to join Monterey in establishing a Peninsula junior college district, one of the members of the existing junior college board, which was entirely of Monterey citizens, resigned so that Mark Raggett could be appointed and Carmel have representation.

His term expiring, Mr. Raggett is running for election to the board. He has served well during his appointive tenure.

The following is his statement:

"As a businessman in Carmel for the past 16 years I feel that I can bring to the College board a practical background necessary for the successful operation of one of the largest businesses on the Monterey Peninsula, education.

"As the father of two sons who have and are attending local schools, as an incumbent member of the college board and with experience in other school and community affairs, I believe that I have a feeling for the type of educational institution we want in this area.

"Past experience includes membership on the education committee of the Monterey County Grand Jury in 1955, the citizens advisory committee in the early days of the college, and on the college business department's advisory committee on merchandising and distribution.

"I feel that the residents of the Carmel and Pacific Grove school districts should realize their responsibility in the newly formed Peninsula-wide college district and join with those of the Monterey district in taking an active interest in the operation of their college."

Though there are nine running for the junior college district board, Mark Raggett is the only candidate from the Carmel Unified School District area. It is important that everyone in this voting area support Mr. Raggett since the election for junior college board is Peninsula-wide and not on the "borough" system.

But aside from furnishing Carmel representation on the board, Mark Raggett is the best qualified candidate and deserving of support on other than regional considerations.

Of the five candidates for the two vacancies on the Carmel Unified School District Board, two emerge as outstanding. Clayton B. Neill, Jr., has a knowledge of the school system and the community that reaches back into childhood. A graduate of Sunset, he received his diploma from Carmel High School with the class of 1946 with a record already established for leadership, responsibility and intelligence. He was class president, captain of the basketball team, member of the football team, California Scholarship Foundation torchbearer, highest scholastic honor in the state, Gold C winner as

"Were You There?" So Far, 18 Qualify For 1906 Firewatch

Senator Ed Tickle wondered if there are any of "those who were there" at the San Francisco 1906 "fire" living on the Peninsula. If so, it might be fun for them to get together for lunch on April 18 for a firewatch and exchange of recollections. "There might not be anybody at all except me, and if there are any, they might not be interested," he speculated, "but it's worth finding out." He ran ads such as the one appearing again in this issue of the Pine Cone.

The result: Fifteen letters, several phone calls, all expressing enthusiastic interest in a firewatch.

All is now arranged. Next Tuesday, April 18, at 12:30 noon at La Playa Hotel the fire watchers will gather for lunch . . . and talk. And if you are one of the elite who were there, who hasn't found out about the watch until now, you may phone La Playa for reservations.

Among the first to proclaim proudly his qualifications was County Clerk Emmet G. McMenamin, Monterey, "I believe my experience during the catastrophy could hardly be exceeded," he challenges. Dr. R. A. Kocher, Carmel Highlands, "Sure I was there. Were you dere Charlie?"

Norman Pollard, Carmel, wrote in for himself and also for Louis Rosenberg, Carmel; Mrs. Betty Marler of Seaside was only 11 months old at the time of the fire but her mother, who is 83 years old and still living "has told me what I know about the fire." John S. Coates wrote from Visalia, "Mrs. Coates was a small girl and lived at 50 Divisadero Street. I lived at that time in Fresno and I felt it and remember the shaking we got there." He and Mrs. Coates who have a home in Carmel at Guadalupe and Valley Way "expect to be there in time to take in this planned event that should prove interesting."

Mrs. L. E. Gottfried, Carmel, also remembers the San Francisco Fire.

Mrs. Arthur Wild, Carmel: "I was six months old on the day, so perhaps I don't qualify." Oh yes she does.

"I was there!" happily proclaims Arthur A. Marshall, 951 Belden Street, Monterey. G. E. Rothe, Carmel, was 17 years old. "As a member of what then was the Newspaper Men's Club, I attended several of the events in annual commemoration of the Fire. I shall be much interested in any plans for local observance." Mrs. Helen J. Small, Carmel, writes

LITTLE LEAGUE OPENER SLATED FOR APRIL 29

In order to take advantage of Daylight Saving Time, the Carmel Little League will delay its opening until April 29 this season with three games scheduled as a lid-lifter. League officials have selected Saturday, April 29 as the official starting date with 1960 champion Pilot Market clashing with the San Carlos Realty in a 11:30 game. Boys' Town takes on Wilder & Jones at 1:30, and the Sport Shop crosses bats with Turner & McElDowney at 3:30. The new format for Little League play gives each team in the league a chance to cavort before the opening-day crowd.

J. O. Handley, one of Carmel's foremost sports fans, has been selected to toss out the first ball on opening day and the sturdy righthander should set a good example for the Carmel small fry. J. O. has been a Little League booster since its inception in Carmel and is always ready with a helping hand when any sports program needs a boost.

Carmel Little League winners will be honored with a championship plaque presented by The House That Jack Built. The plaque will be a permanent trophy with the winner's name engraved on it each year and will rotate from team to team. Pilot Market will display the trophy for the rest of this season and the 1961 winner will take possession next August. The minor league winner will also be the recipient of a championship plaque donated by Sparolini Distributors. The Little Sparrows are the minor league defending champions and will have to shake off the challenge of Carmel Plaza, Village Inn, The Padres, Nikko's, Derek Rayne, and American Legion during this year's chase.

President Van King has called for another Little League work detail Sunday, April 16 at 11:00 o'clock to complete the work on the Little League field. All fathers and friends are asked to please give a helping hand this Sunday.

Farm team action is due to start on May 6 with games at 10:00, 12:00, and 2:00 o'clock.

GONZALES CLIPS CARMEL HIGH VARSITY NINE

Living up to all the nice things said about them at the recent baseball kickoff dinner, the Gonzales Spartans turned on all their power against the Padre varsity last Tuesday afternoon and coasted to a 12-2 win in the league opener for both teams. Picked by all the coaches and sportswriters to cop the league title, the Spartans looked every bit a champion as they put on a twelve-hit batting attack, turned in sparkling fielding plays, and got a nifty four-hit pitching job from Mike Correa. Correa blanked the Padres with a dazzling pitching display for the first six innings and only eased up when the issue was no longer in doubt.

First-baseman Breschini was the big stick for the winners, stroking four safe hits in five trips to the plate and driving in four runs. Bob Little, Rance Kastor, Frank Bucher, and Mike Cole were the only Padre swingers to hit safely off the crafty slants of the Gonzales left-hander.

Jim Brown started on the mound for the local preps and survived an inning-and-a-half before being rescued by big Jim Kelley. Kelley showed a good fast ball in his two-inning stint but ran into control difficulties in the third heat and was relieved by Chris Wilkin. Wilkin also had difficulty locating the strike zone, walking four Gonzales batters in his one-inning of flinging. Freshmen Steve Johnson and Bob Holmes took a try at the Spartans in the sixth and seventh innings, each giving up one run to the winners.

The Padres got on the board in the seventh frame when Bob Little and Rance Kastor connected for back-to-back singles and moved around on a first-base miscue and a passed ball.

This Friday afternoon, Carmel travels to Gilroy for a league joust with the solid Mustang nine. Gilroy is well-equipped with veteran talent at all positions and has been picked to finish close behind the high-flying Spartans. While the Padre varsity is at Gilroy, the Mustang jayvees will travel to Carmel for a tilt with the Little Padres. Both games are slated to begin at 4:00 o'clock.

PADRE JAYVEES NO MATCH FOR MONTEREY

Coach Sal Cardinale's power-packed Monterey junior-varsity nine put together 11 hits and 7 walks to manufacture 13 runs on their way to a 13-4 win over the outmanned Carmel High jayvees. Swinging their big bats with good authority, the Monterey gang pushed across 6 runs in the first inning as they greeted Chris Marvin for 5 hits and 3 walks. Big blow in the rally was second baseman DeMichele's homerun with two mates aboard.

The Little Padres got back two runs in the bottom of the first when Bill Jackson and Dave Maher tallied on Stan Cumming's well-stroked double. Carmel picked up two more runs in the final heat as Jackson and Cummings scored in front of Matt Little's single. The Toreadores sewed up the game in the third frame with a three-run rally occasioned by two walks and three singles.

Chris Marvin started on the mound for the Little Padres but was shelled out before he could get the side out. Bob Moffatt came in to put out the fire and toiled through the second inning. Tim Mosolf pitched the third and fourth heats and Mike Oakey took over for the last two innings. Tim Brattin turned in his usual good game behind the plate and picked up one of the Padre's five hits.

Robin Smith and Al Tegtmeier were the top fielders for the Little Padres, both coming up with difficult chances to erase threatening Monterey rallies.

The Padre junior-varsity will host Robert Louis Stevenson this afternoon in a 4:00 o'clock game and will take on Gilroy High Friday afternoon at the Carmel diamond.

CARMEL TRACK TEAM HOSTS GILROY & SAN LORENZO

Having absorbed lessons in track techniques at the King City Invitational meet last weekend where the heavyweights were blanked and the lightweights managed one first place, Coach Hadley Hicks puts his charges against competition more in their class this Friday when the San Lorenzo Valley Cougars and the Gilroy Mustangs invade Bardarson Field for a three-way meet. At King City, the Padre thinclads were competing with the best in Northern California and gained valuable experience while chasing the NCS stars. Several of the Carmel lads turned in their best marks of the current season but the efforts weren't good enough to get in the top six. Lightweight Jack Zenteno broke the school record as he earned a blue ribbon with a 5-8½ high jump performance. The slender sophomore, plagued with injuries for most of the season, was in top form at King City and shows promise of developing into a six-footer before too long.

San Lorenzo and Gilroy are in the building stage with their track

Two New Bird Guide Books Are Just Out

By Laidlaw Williams

A Field Guide to Western Birds. Text and illustrations by Roger Tory Peterson. Second edition, revised and enlarged. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston, 1961. $4.95.

Handbook of California Birds. Text by Vinson Brown and Henry G. Weston, Jr. Edited by Stella Ford Walker. Naturegraph Company, Heraldsburg, California. 1961. $2.95.

The long-awaited revised edition of Peterson's Western Guide has finally come off the press. The area covered has enlarged from the U.S. west of the 100th Meridian (the limits of the first edition) to include Alaska and western Canada. A special section on Hawaiian birds has been added. Certain Rio Grande Delta "specialties", not included in the author's Eastern Guide, have been incorporated into the main text of the present volume.

The entire text has been rewritten and now includes habitat and nest details. The illustrations have been increased to 1,242, 658 of them in full color. Color has been used where color is the critical factor in identification, but where shape and patterns of light and dark are the diagnostic characteristics black and white drawings have been used. The method for focusing the reader's eye upon diagnostic field marks by means of pointers printed on the plates has been employed in this edition. This system, together with Peterson's succinct phraseology in his textual descriptions, has proven to be highly useful in distinguishing closely similar species in the authors other field guides.

The Handbook of California Birds treats only those species found within the state. Hence the book is less bulky (153 pages), easier to carry in the pocket, and is lighter (a paperback), although the 366 pages (within hard covers) of the Peterson are of about the same size (7½x4½) and can still fit inside a large pocket. Neither book would add much weight to a knapsack.

An important feature of the Handbook is the introductory part which contains sections on shapes of bills, patterns of flight, foraging behavior, habitats in which birds are found, and other attributes to be noted when the beginner is attempting to learn birds. This emphasizes what the tyro often fails to realize when he is attempting to make an identification, i.e., that it isn't just a matter of color pattern, but that bill shapes, manner of flight, foraging behavior, and habitat, all aid in recognizing the species. In California, with its sharply delimited vegetation zones, habitat preference is especially important. There are keys supplied the reader to track down the type of bill, foraging behavior, patterns of flight, etc. Photographs illustrate principal habitats and there are lists of the characteristic birds found in each.

Although the idea which prompted the inclusion of these indroductory sections is a laudable one, I feel that as far as shapes of bills, foraging behavior, and some of the other sections are concerned, the authors have not always been helpful because of their choice of adjectives. Furthermore, their grouping of certain species under a particular heading is often ill chosen, with the result that the guiding hints obtained are misleading. For instance, the Black-necked Stilt is lumped with the Marbled Godwit and Avocet under a heading for certain water and shore birds with the "bill conspicuously curved up" (P. 1) This neither agrees with the two illustrations of the Stilt (Pp. 10 and 62), nor with fact. Also, it might appear as something of a surprise to an ornithologist to have Gallinule and Coot grouped with the diving ducks as birds which dive "to the bottom in deep water for food." (P. 7.)

Any field guide should be adequately illustrated. In the Handbook, 165 birds are shown in "full color" and, whereas the draftsmanship of the colored figures is adequate, the color printing is extremely poor, often producing tones far from what they should be. As to the black and white illustrations, rendered by several artists, they are, with the exception those by Gene M. Christman, quite badly drawn. Some of the more familiar species are (to me, at least) even unrecognizable.

The plates in Peterson's book, on the other hand, are some of the finest that he has ever done, and their reproduction in print is, with the exception of only one or two slips, really superb. Considering illustration combined with concisely worded and accurate text in "A Field Guide to Western Birds," my choice as to which is the better book is easily made.

Letter From Mexico

CASA DE ALFABETIZACION
Valle de Bravo, Mexico

April 3, 1961

Dear Friends:

Almost two months have passed since arriving here. After entering our son Robert in the Escuela Panamericana in Mexico City and finding him a pleasant place to room and board in an all Mexican pension, we were able to return to our work in Valle.

Our main project, writing books in Spanish for new adult readers, supplies information on child care with a simple plot to maintain interest. Combating the high death rate of young children and mothers in Latin America is the objective. The writing follows the Laubach method of controlled vocabulary—using each new word five times.

Quoted here are the Casa de Alfabetizacion Director's words about the previous two books we have completed:

"This year we printed 2000 copies of a Spanish basic reader on Child Care, the first of a series. We are now printing Book Two, along with 4000 more copies of the Laubach Primer to fill requests from other projects in Puerto Rico, Bolivia, Columbia, Costa Rica, many areas of Mexico, California and Texas."

Briefly the content of the series is: Antonio, a bricklayer, falls in love with Carmelita. He gets her family's consent to marry. After premarital medical checkups to determine freedom from disease and ability to have children, they make their plans. Contrary to custom in their village they decide not to live with their families. Antonio builds a simple bathroom with running water, and a cesspool for their little house. Carmelita sews for it.

The Mexican wedding ceremony, with white cord around them and her veil on his shoulder, is followed by a fiesta. After a short honeymoon in the nearby city, they live happily in their cottage.

Carmelita, seeking a remedy for nausea, discovers that she will have a baby. She learns the importance of eating right foods and doing right things during pregnancy. Her mother helps her sew baby clothes. Antonio becomes drunk (sometimes a problem here). Carmelita lifts him from the floor and almost loses her baby. She must remain in bed for a month. He promises never to drink again. From a wooden box he makes her a crib high enough to protect the baby from animals.

We are working on Books Three and Four now: the delivery of the baby in their own house; the care of the mother and baby.

A coincidence has turned out to be most helpful with these books. In a little cottage above us, our landlord has a young caretaker, his wife, mother, his sister and her husband and their two children. All seven sleep in one room, the other room being a kitchen where a small fire often burns right on the floor. One night at 11:00 his mother delivered the daughter's baby. The doctor had given her instructions about cutting the cord and caring for the mother and new baby.

We went up to see how they were. It was a pathetic picture: mother and baby with no beds nor mattress—only a straw mat on a board, a few serapes for cover, no clothing but a bit of old reboso for the baby. The mother was worried that she had no milk. We had just cut out of our book the information that mother's milk does not come for a few days, saying "Oh well, every mother would know that!" So you know what we did—we put that bit right back into the story. From now on we take nothing for granted. Many of these people never have access to such information in their whole lives. Tactfully we were able to explain the need for drinking liquids. We took cocoa and soup to help mother's milk. You can't imagine her relief to know that it was nature's way. And to think that this is her third child! They are charming people with fine character. They simply lack education. None of them in the house can read. We are trying to interest them.

And to think that there are 100,000,000 such illiterates in Latin America and 1,000,000,000 in the whole world!

Book Three has been checked by the local medical authority and by Tom, Director of the Casa. The next step is checking vocabulary and customs with natives of the area and rewriting. However, at this point, Louise is able to begin the illustrations.

Two dozen enthusiastic men and boys are attending Louise's art class two nights a week. Mexicans have a natural artistic ability and Louise hopes to turn their thoughts to their own rich heritage of design to improve the decoration of the somewhat crude pottery of this area. This could help the economic situation as pottery is a main industry here, the village being fortunate in its hilly clay soil.

Gilbert Jr., who is with us until Easter, and Louise have been preparing text and illustrations for reprints of the Pan-American basic readers on health and sanitation. Permission was given the Casa to reprint the discontinued series.

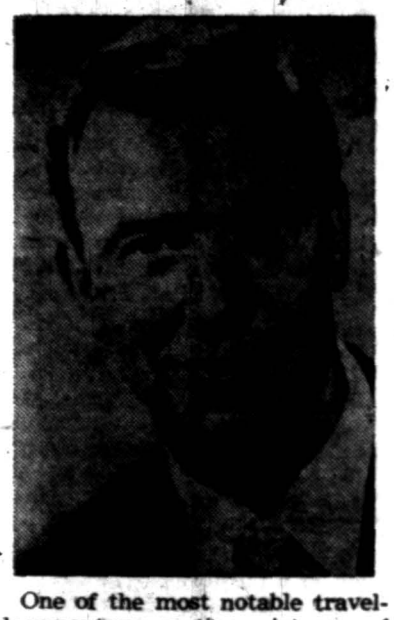
We do manage to get about two hours a day for piano and for painting. I am planning six different piano programs over the next four months. Louise is working toward an exhibition in addition to numerous drawings of local scenes to be used in our books.

We both work every day to improve our Spanish. Our contacts with people in every walk of life broaden vocabulary and knowledge of the people, and also help in their understanding of us and our work here.

We hope your Easter will be a happy one, and we thank you for helping to make our work here possible,—also for the direct help many of you have given the Casa de Alfabetizacion and the Laubach Fund.

May I recommend your reading that most inspiring recent book by Frank Laubach "Thirty Years with the Silent Billion" which can be purchased from 2124 Bonar Street, Berkeley 2, California.

Cordially,
Gilbert and Louise Boyer



One of the most notable travel-documentary motion pictures of recent years, The People of Hungary, will be presented by Gene Wiancko on Thursday evening, April 20 at 8:00 o'clock at Sunset Auditorium. It is sponsored by the Carmel Unified School District.

So far as is known this is the only full-length film of its kind made on Hungary. After five months of negotiations with Hungarian officials, and with the full permission of the United States State Department, Gene Wiancko entered Hungary with his motion picture cameras.

Mr. Wiancko roamed the country in search of material which would portray and interpret the people of Hungary for North American audiences. To catch their character he filmed hundreds of living moments: The people at work, worship, at play. He captured the ways of life of peasants, students, workers, gypsies, great artists, dancers, fishermen. Mr. Wiancko's skilled narration weaves these varied lives into a single moving story about a great race of people and the beautiful land in which they live.

With music recorded in Hungary, the film has scenes of Hungary's tumultuous history, from Roman and Turkish conquests to the revolutions of modern time; Budapest, national dances of Hungary, performed by the nation's greatest dancers; a report on religious freedom; the vanishing ancient customs and traditions; the youth of Hungary, hope of the future; a riverboat trip on the Blue Danube; life among Hungary's quarter million gypsies. For background there are ancient castles and fortresses, inland seas and lakes, and the scenic grandeur of the Balkan Mountains.

Tickets are available at the box-office.

"The Next 15 Or 20 Years Are The Critical Ones"

rently under consideration for adding to the national park system, during the afternoon, and expressed his complete approval. The following morning the President of the Sierra Club stated that in his opinion Secretary Udall's talk marked a turning point in the conservation history of this country.

Justice Douglas suggested that a conference be held soon on a Bill of Rights for the wilderness of this country. Among other things he mentioned the prohibition of Tote-Gotes, motorcycles and other similar vehicles from the wilderness trails. It was announced on Saturday afternoon that Justice Douglas had just been elected a Director of the Sierra Club.

Representative Saylor, one of the authors of the Wilderness Bill, described the bill and commented on the possibilities of its passage. He urged the writing of large numbers of letters to his fellow congressmen in support of the bill. He stated that this was the only sure way to pass it. Lethargy on the part of the friends of the wilderness is the only road block to its passage.

Joseph Wood Krutch, well-known western author, gave an outstanding talk on Human Life in the Context of Nature. One sentence that particularly appealed to me was: "I personally believe that if the earth is not allowed to produce beauty and joy, it will in the end not produce man".

Having attended these conferences from the beginning, I am greatly encouraged at their growth, both in quantity and quality. It seems to me that people are really waking up to the fact that we have very little time left to save some of our remaining wilderness. The next 15 or 20 years will be the critical ones. What we save during those years is probably all that we can ever save.

Henry Dickinson

Henry F. Dickinson, a vital force in this community since 1923, died on Saturday in his home on Carmel Point. He was 88 years old.

Mr. Dickinson was born in St. Louis, Missouri, on March 22, 1873. He attended Lake Forest Academy in Illinois, also Northwestern Military Academy, and spent two years at school in Switzerland before entering the University of Wisconsin where he was a noted athlete and played end for three years on the undefeated Wisconsin Big Ten football team of the 1890s.

He obtained a law degree at Harvard University then practiced as an attorney in Chicago until 1922 when he retired at the age of 48 because he decided his law practice had grown so large it prevented him from fully enjoying life with his family and developing interests he valued. He had visited California on a business trip and after a year in Woodstock, New York, brought his family to live in Carmel, the community he thought would offer them most in life.

Mr. Dickinson purchased land on Carmel Point, then undeveloped, and designed and built the large rambling home which was to become not only a center of hospitality but a focal point in the cultural life of the community.

In his home, Mr. Dickinson's extensive library reflected his catholic literary taste. Pictures depicted his interest in various schools of American and European painting. Trips abroad were represented by mementoes which included a notable collection of African art, crafts and weapons, also stuffed heads of animals he had shot on a big game hunting expedition. He also had a valuable collection of American Indian art and crafts.

Interspersed with family furniture from past generations, were pieces created in the woodworking shop where he spent many hours pursuing his fondest hobby.

Mr. Dickinson shared the musical interest of his wife, the former Edith Colbrooke of Chicago, a talented pianist. They helped organize the Carmel Music Society. Mr. Dickinson became the organization's first treasurer and Mrs. Dickinson one of the first presidents. Visiting musicians were their guests and gave concerts in the Dickinson home. From a trio which played in their home grew a 40-piece children's orchestra in Carmel. Mr. Dickinson also assisted with the organization of early Bach Festivals.

He served for eight years as president of the Forest Theater Association and built many of the sets for productions of this group. During the depression, when inability to pay back taxes hampered the organization, Mr. Dickinson arranged for the theater and its 23 lots to become city property. He also took an active part in town fairs to raise money to pay the $2,000 tax bill and free the property.

He was a member of the first local planning commission. At this time he drew up a master plan for the area and fought successfully against a project for development along the coast. He also was a member of the board of directors of the first bank in Carmel, served on the board of the Peninsula Community Hospital, also on the board of the Carmel Sanitary District, for five years. He aided in establishing Carmel's only public park, Devendorf Plaza, and worked to maintain Carmel unassailed by regulation sidewalks, house numbers and mail delivery.

He told many amusing tales of Carmel life through the years, and was ready to laugh at the part he had played at times in some of the developments. An instance of this was when the first community Christmas tree was organized. Mr. Dickinson thought the children of Carmel would enjoy experiencing a snow storm. He prepared cartons of white paper, cut into tiny pieces, and rigged a fan to blow this simulated snow so that it would fall gently about carol singers clustered around the Ocean Avenue Christmas tree. Christmas Eve, at the appropriate moment, he released the snowfall. An errant wind swept the paper snowflakes high into the air. None fell where he had planned.

His interest in wilderness camping was evidenced throughout his life. He was an ardent hunter and fisherman.

Following the death of his wife some years ago, Mr. Dickinson lived alone. During this time he invited guests for dinner frequently and cooked and served the meal himself. Memories of his interesting anecdotes, analyses of world events, and evaluations of his studies of history, also his manifest interest in his friends' joys and problems, his particular philosophy of life, all will be treasured by those who shared these evenings with him, seated around a candlelit table laid with fine silver and elegant china.

His youngest son, William, was killed while serving in World War II. His older son, Henry, died accidentally a year ago. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth White of Los Angeles and Miss Edith Dickinson of Sausalito and Carmel; a grandson, John P. White of Carmel, a great-granddaughter, Katherine White of Carmel; and a sister, Mrs. Ralph Skene of Carmel.

Memorial services for Mr. Dickinson were held on Tuesday in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea with Chaplain John R. Wright officiating.

Friends wishing to honor the memory of Henry Dickinson may do so in the form of donations to the new Peninsula Community Hospital Fund, Box HH, Carmel.

Kapiolani Field

Mrs. Kapiolani Field, born the Princess Kawananakoa of Hawaii, died on Saturday in Kula, Maui, Hawaii, after a long illness. She was a frequent Carmel visitor. Her grandchildren, Edward, David and Regina Kawananakoa attend school in Carmel. Her sister, now Mrs. Liliuokalani Morris of Switzerland, maintained a home here when married to the late Clark Lee of Pebble Beach.

Mrs. Field was the oldest child of Prince David, heir to the throne of Hawaii, and the late Princess Abigail Kawananakoa. She was the granddaughter of James Campbell and one of the heirs of his estate which comprises one-fifth of the Island of Oahu. Active in Hawaiian civic, political and social life, Mrs. Field was hostess to such persons as the King and Queen of Sweden, the Duke of Windsor, and President Franklin Roosevelt when they visited the Hawaiian Islands.

In addition to her grandchildren in Carmel, she is survived by her husband, Harry Field of Kula, Maui; two daughters, the Marchesa Kapiolani Marignoli of Italy, and Poomai Kawananakoa of Honolulu; a son, Edward Kawananakoa of Honolulu; and two other grandchildren, Esmerelda and Eleluli Marignoli of Italy.

Under MacDonald Island in the San Joaquin River Delta is America's largest natural gas "storage tank." PG&E is pumping out-of-state natural gas into this old gas field. In summer, when you use less gas for heating, we put it underground at MacDonald Island—ready for instant delivery when cold snaps come. Using nature's mile-deep reservoir is an economical way of storing this low-cost energy. This is another project in Pacific Gas and Electric Company's continuing program of building ahead for California—a state on the grow.

In Carmel They All But Vote

By Marie Rowland

Gretchen Wahl and her dad, retired Brig. Gen. George D. Wahl, are both great bird watchers. Their home on San Luis Road is equipped with the right bird feeders particularly to help keep the quail plentiful and secure in that area of Carmel Woods.

Gretchen tells how very saddened they were when the mother quail of a new bevy of charming little ones was killed by a cat. The General jumped into the breach; he quickly made a cage with an opening at the bottom. Then, together, he and Gretchen worked until they had shooed all the babies under that cage safe and sound.

A couple of days later when they were feeding a swarm of older quail in their garden, one of the male birds detached himself from the rest and went to investigate that cage near by. The bird's excited clucking elicited equally excited chirps of recognition from the baby quail imprisoned there.

"Why, he's their father!" explained the General.

Forthwith, he gently lifted up the cage and the daddy rushed in to greet his brood. From then on he was in charge "mothering" them faithfully, bringing them each day to the feeding ground . . . until they were old enough to fend for themselves.

Next time you see George Hoy start him talking about blue jays. It seems he had a blue jay so tame that it came into his house—a member of the family. George would put peanuts in his pocket and whistle; his Jay would light on his shoulder and nuzzle in his breast pocket for the nuts.

Now George lives up at Fourth and Guadalupe in the Woods. One day he was having lunch downtown. He had just stepped out of the restaurant onto Ocean Avenue when down from the sky, with a flash of blue wings, zoomed a jay, chattering hysterically joyous "hello there! hello there!"

That jay landed on George's shoulder, gave his ear a loving peck . . . and you know the rest. George will blush in telling that story. "I guess people passing must have thought I was just another Carmel nut . . ." he says.

It was very late Easter night when Tovarisch III, our wire-haired terrier, wanted out. We decided to kill two pebbles: take a letter to the P.O. and give Tavvie a change of aromas. We had mailed our letter and were walking her along Dolores Street when she persisted in exploring the alley.

While Tavvie stubbornly read the fine print, I idly toed with a folded slip of paper which looked like someone's discarded grocery list. It blew open. In the light of the moon, it looked interesting. I picked it up, looked closer. It was a check for $1000—made out to a man and signed by a lady with a Southern California address.

Two long-distance calls later and a young man came to the house to retrieve his check, leaving a gift for Tavvie and a new moniker "The Treasure Hound."

When Harriet Meyer left for Anchorage, Alaska, on her last vacation, she left her very aging female cocker, Karen, with the Ron Nicholsens in the Highlands. Harriet feared the rugged life in the Highlands would probably hasten the demise of her loved one. But she underestimated the rejuvenating powers of a new adventure.

Now most people live in the Highlands for peace, quiet and isolation. One night this haven was desecrated by the resounding and persistent barks of a dog in pursuit of quarry. It went on and on. Poor Ron was in and out of bed all night. He called, whistled, explored in PJS through briar and bracken. To his amazement he finally discovered it wasn't either of his own two lusty dogs but the old female, Karen, that was missing.

Next morning Karen returned wearing a happy aura of youthful fatigue. Ron went the rounds of the neighbors to apologize. At the home of Mrs. Lester Rowntree he learned that Old Karen had been in the Rowntree yard, on the porch, screaming hilariously all night in the light of the moon, in never-ceasing pursuit of a raccoon who was enjoying it too.

Walking along Scenic Drive fronting the ocean the other Sunday afternoon, we passed the attractive Redwood house boasting the shingle "Hale Makai."

It wasn't the Hawaiian flavor of the name that sent us. What we noticed, in the large glassed-in solarium to the right of the house, was a giant yellow dog of the shepherd-collie variety, stretched along a table top. Its beautiful head was motionless. I followed its gaze. The eyes were fastened, not upon the passing Sunday crowd, but over their heads and beyond . . . far out to sea . . . where the late afternoon sun made pools of gold.

We stood and watched for some time. That dog's gaze never wavered. You'd swear, as we did: "There is the epitome of esthetic serenity."

Harvey Herold

Harvey R. Herold died on Friday in a San Jose hospital after a long illness. He had resided in Carmel for the past three years. His home was on Scenic Drive on Carmel Point.

Mr. Herold was born in San Jose on February 1, 1891. With his brother, he founded a shoe store in San Jose. He retired before coming to Carmel.

Survivors are his wife, Grace, of Carmel; a daughter, Mrs. Richard Morton of Carmel and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on Monday in the John Dowdle Mortuary in San Jose. Burial followed in Oak Hill Cemetery in the same city.

Frida Sharpe

Mrs. Frida Grace Sharpe, a resident of this area for over 50 years, died on Monday in the home on Guadalupe Street which she shared with her daughter, Mrs. Rosalind Wall. Her health had been failing for some time.

Mrs. Sharpe was 71 years old. She was born in Sacramento on August 18, 1889. She came to Monterey in 1910 and was a school teacher prior to her marriage, then from 1919 to 1954 lived almost continuously on family property at Bixby Creek on the coast south of Carmel. She was first associated with her husband in operating Rainbow Lodge and adjacent campsites. Later she owned and operated Bixby Inn, a restaurant along Highway One on the cliffs beside Bixby Creek Bridge, since demolished after it was acquired by the State of California.

During recent years, Mrs. Sharpe has lived in Carmel and was a familiar figure in the town, using a white cane, because of partial blindness, to assist her in getting about.

Her only son, Lieutenant William G. Sharpe, a World War II pilot, was killed in combat over Germany while serving with the 8th Air Force in 1945.

Besides her daughter, Rosalind, she is survived by two grandchildren, Christopher and Miranda Wall of Carmel.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday in the Little Chapel-by-the- Sea with the Reverend Karel V. Vit of the Unitarian Fellowship of the Monterey Peninsula officiating.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

National Library Week is here again, or almost. This year it is the week of April 16 through 22 and all the libraries in this area are cooperating in observing it. The three county libraries of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito, and all public libraries within splashing distance of the bay, will get together on a Book Fair to be held in the Salinas Public Library. It will go on all week, and authors of children's books will be there to autograph their books and talk to the visitors. From our own library staff will go Mrs. Maxine Shore who has published several delightful books for young people. She will be at the fair on Thursday evening.

The Carmel library will arrange the booth filled with books about animals in fact and fiction. To help us do this some of the students in Mr. Broadman's art class made us a series of delightfully fantastic animals. They are done on paper and the animals themselves are fashioned from fur, fuzz, plastic, paper, and even burned out flash bulbs. You will be pleased with the talent, imagination, and training these students show here.

The California State Library is sending down a collection of original illustrations which were done for children's books and were collected by Gladys English, one of California's well known children's librarians. The State Library has this collection with the idea that it might encourage other artists to go into the juvenile book illustration field.

On Friday evening a dinner will be held in the Bali Room of the Naval Postgraduate School. The public is invited to attend. Certain writers of this area have been invited to attend as guests of the Monterey Bay Library Executives group. Tickets are on sale at our library at the circulation desk.

Lois Watson's Prize Poster On Exhibit Next Week In Salinas

In connection with National Library Week, school children of Santa Cruz, San Benito, and Monterey counties competed in a poster contest with the general slogan Explore Book Treasures. Three imaginative posters from Carmel were sent to the final judging in Salinas. The three were done by Laura Shepherd, Lois Watson, and Barbara Stone.

First prize in the contest was won by a student from the Sacred Heart School in Salinas, but the poster done by Lois Watson received the second of four prizes, and will be on exhibit at the Book Fair which is being held during the week in the new Salinas Library. The poster by Barbara Stone is being displayed in a Salinas branch library; the one done by Laura Shepherd in the children's room of the Carmel library.

All three girls did excellent work, according to the judges who said they had difficulty in choosing the winners among the 120 posters submitted for the contest.

Operation Update Speaker

Charles Mulkey, dean of technical and vocational education at Monterey Peninsula College and a resident of Carmel, maintains that women, contrary to the prevailing belief, are interested in electronics.

"I've had several of them in my electronics classes at MPC, and I've seen their excitement when they find they're really catching on," he says.

He will address an audience of women on Thursday morning at 10:00 o'clock in the MPC library lecture hall as the third lecturer in the AAUW-MPC sponsored series, Operation Update.

Mr. Mulkey will touch on electronics and various other phases of modern technology, tracing the basic advances made in the last two decades.

He first came to Carmel in 1941, remaining here until 1950. During that period, he initiated and developed the radio and television training program at Monterey Union High School. He graduated magna cum laude from San Jose State College in 1952, then developed, coordinated, hired and trained teachers for an electronics program there.

Returning to the Peninsula in 1958, he developed vocational programs in electronics, electronic data processing, dental assisting, aviation, fire service, police training, graphic arts and construction technology at Monterey Peninsula College.

He is the author of the forthcoming book, Introduction to Electronics, to be published by John Wiley & Sons in January, 1962.

His occupational background includes an assortment of jobs totally unrelated to the educational field. He has been, among other things, an electronics engineer, a salesman, a secret service operative, a lumberjack, a locomotive fireman, a magazine and newspaper columnist, an autopsy assistant, a bookkeeper, a bellhop, a technical book reviewer.

He and Mrs. Mulkey have one daughter, Diane, a student at Carmel High School.

Mulkey's April 20 lecture, like the others in Operation Update, is open, free of charge, to all women.

Sunday, she telephoned to tell them she had been selected to work with the United Nations in Geneva for eight weeks. She will leave as soon as her junior year at Wellesley is completed.

Patty is a political science major. This weekend, with a group of students with same major, she will visit Washington, D. C. She graduated from Carmel High School in 1958 and was granted a Seven College scholarship to attend Wellesley.

Following her work in Geneva, Patty plans to spend the rest of summer vacation traveling in Europe and will also visit a former Carmel High classmate, Terry Shames, in Paris.

Classmates Shower Lucinda

Lucinda Lloyd arrived at the home of Judge and Mrs. Gordon Campbell Tuesday evening in response to an invitation to have dessert with the Campbell family. She was surprised to find Mrs. Campbell and her daughters, Lynne, Julie and Polly, had invited a group of friends from the Class of 1959 at Carmel High School to shower Lucinda with gifts for the home which she and Johnny Williams will occupy in Carmel Valley following their marriage on May 6.

Ribbons she removed from colorfully wrapped packages were arranged in a nosegay for Lucinda to carry as a wedding rehearsal bouquet. A golden-haired bride holding a parasol stood surrounded with tiny pink roses on the refreshment table covered with a lace cloth.

Guests at the party were Jeannie Elston, Anne Isenberger, Vivian Davis, Dits Requiro, Gina Millington, Susan White, Mrs. Richard Lofton, Miss Marjorie Dale, Mrs. Leonard S. Williams, mother of Lucinda's fiance, her younger sister, Mardi Lloyd, and her mother, Mrs. Frank Lloyd.

The Campbell's dog, Hilde, took part in the festivities. She presented Lucinda with a gift, shook hands with guests, "talked" and delighted everyone with her accomplishments and charming personality, under the direction of Polly Campbell.

MPVS Gifts And Reports

Members of Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services unanimously approved a diversified list of gifts totaling $1780 for Peninsula organizations at their April meeting last Friday at the Monterey U.S.O.

The Visiting Nurse Association was given $1500 to help defray expenses incurred in repairing extensive termite damage and building extra storage space. The Girl Scouts received $80 for two Camperships, and the Science Fair $200, thus enabling more of Monterey's young scientists to develop and display the things they have created.

Mrs. Lincoln Noelle, chairman of the Thrift Shop, expressed her thanks to the vice-chairman, Mrs. Laurids Jorgenson, and all the members who have helped at the shop. Its new location at 785 Broadway in Seaside has proved to be profitable and provides a pleasant and accessible place for customers to browse and shop. The net profit reported for March was $1256.43.

Two guests attending the meeting spoke briefly of the organizations they represent. Miss Cathering Bormenko, director of the Visiting Nurse Association, gave a resume of the ten years of service the V.N.A. has contributed to the Peninsula. Starting with a $1500 gift from M.P.V.S. in 1951, the home calls have increased from 1,291 the first year to 9,748 in 1960. Dr. Remsen Bird gave an outline of the activities of the Monterey Peninsula Institute of Foreign Studies and told of its aim in creating an awareness of the important role the United States plays in the rest of the world.

A report on the highlights of the work of other organizations given by Mrs. Rudolph ver Mehr, Jr., the M.P.V.S. representative on the Community Council, closed the meeting.

APRIL

Earth . . . fragrant, damp and warm,
Tenderly kissed by an April rain
Passionately embraced by the ardent sun,
Pulsating now with new seeds of life,
Impatient to be born again

—SUSAN THORNE

FERNS AND FIRE

In a moist purple crevice
At the lower barb of a cliff rainbow
Green hair ferns flow and stop at sunpoints.
The curling arching strata of colored stone
And the wavy verdure, sponged with dry air,
Pointing and stopping short of death under gold sun rays,
May remind some human beings of love.
Love may be the shadowed nook of symmetrical ferns,
And it may be the multicolored arches of stratified twistings.
Through it may grow the green waves of airy happiness,
But it tapers in all its magnificence and stops.
It ends short of the sunfire on scorching chert,
Where even the vestments of blue lizards burn,
Or the fern is burned to its roots.

—A. R. WAGNER

THIS TENDER HOUR

How peace-enchanted is the morning!
Only the talkative sparrow and the mourning dove
Salute the sun.
I stretch my being upon this solitude,
Closing the door on memories that wound
And thoughts that snake dance down the avenues of mind.
How peace-enchanted is the morning!
Here there is quiet
And though the lightning of history strikes,
And the tree of empire thunders to its doom,
Here there is quiet
And I may stretch my being upon this tender hour.

—LUCIA TRENT

THE MISER

My gaze roved high
With eyes ranging far
In an astral sea
To the Golden Hind—
A gilded star, her anchor,
In polished reaches
Their glitter clear;
I gathered each in widening stare—
A miser's coin
I store;
For I would gloat
While counting treasures;
Lost,
The ennui
Of rain-slashed nights.

Jessie Maxey

Mrs. Jessie Harris Maxey died on Saturday in her home at Carmelo Street and Ocean Avenue following a long illness.

She was born in Howard, Kansas, on July 21, 1885. Eight years ago she came to Carmel to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Twyla I. Brown.

In addition to her daughter in Carmel, she is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Anabelle Kuhn of Wichita, Kansas, and Mrs. Mary Lou Reynolds of Monterey; a foster son, William O. Brown Jr. of Wichita; a sister, Mrs. J. D. Larkin of Wichita; a granddaughter, Mrs. J. C. Edwards, and two great-grandsons, James Lloyd and Jack Dwane Edwards, all of Phoenix, Arizona.

Memorial services, conducted by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray, were held on Sunday in the chapel of the Church of the Wayfarer.

Final services were planned to be held in Wichita at the Gill Mortuary with burial to follow in White Chapel Memorial Gardens.

Friends wishing to honor the memory of Mrs. Maxey may do so in the form of donations to the Church of the Wayfarer organ fund.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The oneness and supremacy of God will be emphasized at Christian Science services this Sunday.

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon. The Golden Text is from the first chapter of II John: "He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son."

The opening selection to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Jesus taught but one God, one Spirit, who makes man in the image and likeness of Himself,—of Spirit, not of matter" (p. 94).

From the Bible will be read this verse from Psalm 143: "Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness."

painting and possible remodeling of the council chambers. His proposals were to paint the council chamber walls an off-white color and provide minimum lighting. He promised that he would have an estimate on these items to present at the May 10 commission meeting. In the meantime he would meet with other members of the museum committee, Glenn Kearns and Hazel McClellan, to work on further details of the "important but not deadline project."

Arts commissioners also heard Commissioner Glenn Kearns' plans for Forest Theater Sundays, a series of community entertainments each summer Sunday afternoon, starting after school closes in June and extending through September, with the weekends of the Bach Festival excluded.

Mr. Kearns' suggestions were that programs should be presented on the stage at the theater and in the downstairs rooms under the stage. Stage programs should begin at 2:00 o'clock and last a little over an hour with intermissions. Programs downstairs should be demonstrations by artists and craftsmen, during intermissions and before and after stage presentations. The theater should open for Forest Theater Sundays at 1:30 o'clock and close at 4:00. Admission, 25 cents.

Neither programs should be limited to one person. The Youth Center had agreed to furnish and operate a refreshment booth with all proceeds going to the center.

Mr. Kearns said he would donate a baby grand piano for the project and Don Adams would donate piano storage facilities.

Mr. Kearns also announced that funds would be necessary to initiate Forest Theater Sundays, and suggested that the arts commission request the city council for this money, later to be repaid from admission revenue. Other commissioners agreed that $100 should be a sufficient amount.

He asked, too, that two members be added to the committee in charge of arranging programs and selecting artists. Other commissioners voted to ask Nancy Ness Bowman, former opera singer, to assist Chairman Marjorie Wurzmann with stage programs and Clarence Bates, a sculptor, to work with Richard Lofton on the downstairs presentations.

Mrs. Wurzmann then announced that plans are being made to have the Fort Ord Band perform at the first Forest Theater Sunday, which will be open to the public free of charge.

Commissioners ended their meeting by voting to table their artist-in-residence project.

Briefs...

No, I wasn't there. So I don't qualify for the fire watch. But my birth certificate was there, establishing that Wilma Muriel Bullard was born in San Francisco, September 6, 1905.

Mother kept telling me from time to time that I must do something about getting a birth certificate because the city hall records were destroyed in the fire. About five years ago, hoping that one of these days I might be lucky enough to need a passport, I set about getting my birth re-established.

Dad and I went to the county courthouse in Salinas where he made out an affidavit. Needing another witness, we mailed off an affidavit for my aunt in Los Angeles to fill out. I wrote to Arizona for a photostat of Cliff's and my marriage license, and had a photostat made of Sunny's birth certificate. I couldn't see what bearing a marriage license and child's birth certificate would have on my own birth, but I suppose it is testimony that I exist. After months of assemblying these documents, I mailed them all off to Sacramento with two dollars and a request for a birth ceritficate.

I got my two dollars back. And a photostatic copy of my birth certificate, my real, original, birth certificate, that had been in Sacramento all the time. It had been in the fire; the photostat showed its curled, scorched edges, evidence of the heat it had been subjected to, but all the necessary data was there, clearly to be read, except, of course the doctor's signature, which looks like Welsh, Walsh, Malsh or Marsh.

Not all of the documents in San Francisco City Hall were destroyed on April 18, 1906, Sacramento bureau of vital statistics informed me. Those that survived were taken to Sacramento.

And they didn't charge me for the photostat. On the house for birth certificates that "were there."

—W. C.

Monterey County Supervisors, Monday, voted to abandon any plans for a flood control zone for Carmel Valley and the City of Carmel.

Commander J. L. May, president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, told supervisors 80 percent of Valley residents opposed the zone; the other 20 percent lives along the Carmel River.

Supervisors received ten letters protesting the district, also a petition with 177 signatures. No one spoke in favor of the flood control proposal.

Carmel city council, last week, voted against the project.

Mrs. Roberts Urges Residents To Send Red Cross Donations

Mrs. Kenneth Roberts, residential area chairman for the current Red Cross Fund Drive in Carmel, states, "Residential area committee members are making a final plea to the residents of Carmel for donations to the Red Cross Fund Drive. We know many residents were missed due to the fact that this year, with increased population, we are still $800 short of our previous year's total collection.

"Carmel's adjoining areas are also lagging. We are still $7000 short in our total Carmel Chapter jurisdiction and we urge those who were missed to send donations to Carmel Chapter Red Cross, Box AR, Carmel."

Tomlinson Offers Candidacy Statement For Jr. College Board

George Tomlinson, an insurance broker with offices in Carmel since 1946, is a candidate for one of two vacancies on the Monterey Peninsula Junior College Board. He is a resident of Pebble Beach, living just within the Monterey school district.

Mr. Tomlinson is past president of the Monterey Republican Central Committee. He is on the board of the Arts and Humanities Council, a charter member and director of the Pacheco Club, a member of Lodge No. 331, F. & A. M., Pacific Grove.

He married Adele Escolle in 1944. She is the daughter of Charles B. Escolle and granddaughter of Honore Escolle, ranchers who sold to Frank Devendorf and Frank Powers land which is now the City of Carmel. The Tomlinsons have two daughters, Lynn, 14, and Tina, six, both students at Santa Catalina School for Girls.

Following is Mr. Tomlinson's candidacy statement:

"I have been asked to give you tions was rarely found in one person. I considered this along with the public interest in education and the bills before the Legislature (Fisher Bill).

"Other urgent problems are as follows:

1. Establish experience as a qualification instead of credentials for the Faculty.
2. Up-grade the position of the Faculty.
3. Encourage Faculty residency.
4. Establish policy to eliminate the down-grading of academic excellence."

Vote For Raggett, Neill, Newton In Tuesday Election

outstanding student in scholarship, athletics, extra-curricular activities and leadership.

His education at Stanford will be useful to the district in that he took a bachelor's degree in civil engineering and his master's in business administration. He received business and administrative experience during his service as navy supply officer on a submarine tender and destroyer. For two years he was with a San Francisco chartered accountant firm, and since 1957, is associated with his father in Carmel in the family engineering business, Village Hardware, four water companies and a ranch.

We place special emphasis on his business training and experience because two members of the board whose terms expire and are not candidates for re-election are the board's only businessmen, George Yates and Ted Fehring. Neill is the only business-trained candidate to fill the gap.

He is public service minded, at present Little League manager, Rotary member, member of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association; he is also a member of the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club. His ties with the school system are Kathy, five, and future Carmel district school student, Kim, one year old. He is married to a former school teacher.

Dr. Robert E. Newton, president of the High School P-TA, has a daughter, Peggy, who is an honor student at Carmel High School and a son, Gary, fifth grade at Woods School. He is professor of mechanical engineering at the Naval Postgraduate School, and chairman of the department of mechanical engineering. He has lived here since 1952.

He is particularly aware of the need for maintaining high educational standards in the Carmel schools since 90 percent of Carmel system graduates go on to college, while the national average is 25 percent, he points out. He is concerned that enrollment is increasing faster than assessed valuation, so that to maintain standards "demands continuing re-examination of every facet of the school program, that is, a progressive, realistic approach."

Three other candidates have shown public spirit in offering their services to the district, however, one has lived in the district only a year, another, as an employee of the Monterey school system might find himself committed in a way he does not anticipate; the third, a psychologist by profession would produce an embarrassment of riches. We already have Dr. Richard Snyder, a psychologist with the Human Research Unit at the Presidio, as one of the three holdover members. The other holdover members are Dr. Grant Fletcher, a physician, and Mrs. Adrian Bennett, housewife. Neill, trained in business; Dr. Newton, an educator, will contribute to the balance of the board. That they are both engineers is a bonus, a big bonus in a district embarking on a two million dollar building program.

Bach Festival Soloists Schedule Announced

soloists. Pianist Adolph Baller and violinist Robert Donington will each perform concertos for the first Saturday night, while works featuring soprano Brunetta Mazzolini and cellist Gabor Rejto will highlight the July 22 program.

Another innovation this year will be a special midnight candlelight concert Wednesday, July 19, at Carmel Mission Basilica, presenting the Missa Carminum by Heinrich Issac and In Ecclesiis by Giovanni Gabrieli.

The Monday night concert will present a complete performance of Bach's Art of the Fugue. Tuesday night's program is entitled A Family Concert at the Bach Home, and will include an unusual work, the Balletto a 5 of Brunelli, to be played, sung, and danced. Handel's Saul will be presented Thursday night as the second in a Handel oratorio cycle inaugated in 1959 with Samson.

Morning and afternoon recitals, as well as the special midnight concert, will not be included in this year's season tickets, which provide admission to five evening concerts and one Sunday afternoon. Highlights of the recital schedule: Harpsichordist Alice Ehlers, Saturday mornings, July 15 and 22; violinist Robert Donington, Tuesday morning; pianist Joanna Hodges, Wednesday morning; baritone McHenry Boatwright, Wednesday afternoon; cellist Gabor Rejto, Friday morning (July 21); tenor James Schwabacher, Friday afternoon; organist Ludwig Altman, Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

A lecture on The Art of the Fugue on Monday morning and a symposium on Handel's Saul on Thursday morning will be free. Recitals and lectures will take place at the Carmel Woman's Club, with one at Sunset School auditorium, organ concerts at the Church of the Wayfarer.

Previous season subscribers will have preference in allocation of the 400 season tickets available; deadline for orders is May 15. Festival headquarters is located at San Carlos and Seventh Streets, post office box 503; reservations may be telephoned to MAyfair 4-3437. Boxoffice will open at Festival Headquarters on June 1.
